THE NEW LAW.

"Outage Bill" Will Save Mayville Distillers Thousands of Dollars.

Deputy United States Internal Revenue Collector Hackett received notice yesterday from Collector Hackett which brings welcome news to Mayville distillers.

Heretofore distillers or holders have been subject to great loss in evaporation of liquors after being aged four years following the passage leaving the rails.

In some cases the loss before sale was $500 on the barrel.

The new ruling allows an additional three years for aging, during the time seven years, after placing the spirits in barrels.

The notice follows:

By order of the Internal Revenue, Mayville Distillers and owners to produce on or before the 1st day of April, 1900, a statement of the quantity of spirits produced during the year 1899, and the quantity of spirits warehoused prior to March 23, 1897, must be filed with the collector.

R. J. Hackett, Collector.

The ruling will save distillers in Mayville thousands of dollars each year.

It increased the storage time from four to seven years and the allowance for loss of evaporation and evaporation from nine gallons for four years to thirteen and one-half gallons for seven years.

Spring is approaching, and already the live Merchant is laying in his stock. Prospective buyers, ever mindful that it's the early bird that catcheth the worm, will be on the lookout for their needs when the season opens.

IT IS THE FASHION

Nowadays for merchants all over the country to resort to fancy tales in their advertisements to induce people to buy goods. That's the kind of stuff you find with us, and that's the reason you, like your fathers and grandfathers before you, come to us.
